This year, the Comox Valley Club no longer has access to the North Island College (NIC) ceramics studio including the kilns, so membership fees have been reduced. The Club remains committed to offering a full program of educational and social opportunities, including artist talks, demonstrations, 2 pottery sales and social events.

Member Benefits

- A year-long program of educational and social events to foster the pottery community.
- Participation in general meetings to help shape the Club's future.
- Two Club sales in the Comox Valley. The Club will book the venue, provide insurance, and promote the event through social media and a poster campaign. (Sales will proceed only if sufficient member participation is confirmed.)

Knowledge Sharing

Members will receive invitations to Club events by email for club member talks, demonstrations, critiques and discussion, social events and other knowledge-sharing opportunities.

General Meetings

The Club holds general meetings every two months. Members are encouraged to attend, meet fellow potters, and take part in shaping the Club's future.

Join our Facebook page

The Club maintains a public Facebook page with over 1,000 followers, a member-only Facebook group for sharing information and building community, and an Instagram account for showcasing members' work. Links are provided in Club communications.

Website

Members can be added to the online directory, which features a photo of their work and contact information.

Volunteer

The Club relies on member involvement. We encourage each member to contribute a minimum of 3–5 volunteer hours annually. Volunteering is a valuable way to connect with other potters and support the Club's activities.

What has happened with the North Island College (NIC) studio use

North Island College has chosen to end the Club's agreement for access to the NIC studio and kilns. The Executive Board is actively exploring both short-term and long-term solutions for studio and kiln access; however, these may not be available during the current membership year.

Thank you for supporting the Comox Valley Pottery Club.
